Here's a view of Camas taken about 26 years ago — when N. E. Fourth Avenue, the city's main street, turned abruptly into woods somewhere in the vicinity of the present Crown Zellerbach Hotel. Notice that angle parking was then in vogue, even for delivery trucks, and that power poles lined both sides of the street.